

Thanks for making those final corrections. The manuscript is ready for production now, with only one exception.

In spite of your discussion on the terminology of covariation and correlation I must insist that you use "correlation" at least when you report correlation coefficients such as in lines 234, 277, 284. Covariation may be understood but it's a different thing. You can leave covariation in other instances, although I don't understand why you would wish to do so.

RESPONSE: "Correlation" has been inserted on the indicated lines.

.