Dear authors,

this is a very interesting study of great relevance! When reading it I noted a small issue in the comparison of the production of biologically labile photoproducts from terrestrial DOC in coastal waters (investigated by you in this study) with the photochemical production of DIC in inland waters worldwide (published last year by me and coauthors; Koehler et al. 2014, GBC 28,696-711). The worldwide estimate includes only lakes and reservoirs but not rivers, which should be revised accordingly in line 23 of the discussion paper.
