

Interactive comment on “The definition of life in the context of its origin” by Y. N. Zhuravlev and V. A. Avetisov

Anonymous Referee #2

Received and published: 2 May 2006

I consider that the manuscript represents a real contribution to the scientific progress within the scope of Biogeosciences.

The scientific approach and the methods were balanced and well thought-out.

However, the presentation and English syntax needs especial attention because of the deep philosophical emphasis being placed upon various theories and viewpoints. Indeed, there may be those who believe that such a manuscripts may be better served by a journal of a more philosophical rather than a scientific nature. That is not my view however and I am happy if it be place here.

Interactive comment on Biogeosciences Discussions, 3, 155, 2006.

Full Screen / Esc

Print Version

Interactive Discussion

Discussion Paper