

Interactive comment on “Nitrogen impacts on vascular plants in Britain: an analysis of two national observation networks” by P. A. Henrys et al.

P. Christie

p.christie@qub.ac.uk

Received and published: 28 July 2011

It would be helpful if the authors could carefully check their references to the UK and Great Britain throughout their manuscript for accuracy. For example, the map shown in Figure 1 only shows Great Britain but the Figure legend refers to the UK.

This distinction may seem unimportant, but confusion between the two territorial entities can be important when the results of other studies are used for calculations. We must be able to trust authors to make accurate and correct statements, otherwise use of their data may lead to erroneous calculations in future studies.

C2204

Interactive comment on Biogeosciences Discuss., 8, 7441, 2011.

C2205