We would like to thank the reviewer for making this comment. We completely agree that it is very important to distinguish between Great Britain and the UK and that we must be consistent throughout the manuscript to improve the clarity, repeatability and transparency of our results. To this end, we have been through the manuscript and checked all references to the UK and Great Britain and made it clear in all cases to make the correct distinction. Further to this, with specific reference made to Figure 1, the map published has failed to include Northern Ireland and the Isle of Man through printing error. This will be corrected in the final version of the manuscript. Many thanks
