

Interactive comment on “Interactions among temperature, moisture, and oxygen concentrations in controlling decomposition rates” by Carlos A. Sierra et al.

L. Schipper (Referee)

Schipper@waikato.ac.nz

Received and published: 12 December 2016

Apologies, in last sentence of comment 11, I left out the word "not" so the comment should read:

It would be not unusual for a soil to cycle by 5 to 10 C during a 24 hour period where moisture content would be steady and there is less time for adaptation.

Interactive comment on Biogeosciences Discuss., doi:10.5194/bg-2016-474, 2016.