

Interactive comment on “Riverine particulate C and N generated at the permafrost thaw front: case study of western Siberian rivers across a 1700-km latitudinal transect” by Ivan V. Krickov et al.

Ivan V. Krickov et al.

oleg.pokrovsky@get.omp.eu

Received and published: 22 August 2018

We thank Reviewer No 1 for his/her thorough review and useful comments. Please find attached the revised manuscript with all changes highlighted. We added a big deal of new information in the main text of the paper; however we would like to keep technical details in the Supplement.

---

Interactive comment on Biogeosciences Discuss., <https://doi.org/10.5194/bg-2018-245>, 2018.

Printer-friendly version

Discussion paper

1 Riverine particulate C and N generated at the permafrost thaw front:
2 case study of western Siberian rivers across a 1700-km latitudinal transect

3

4 Ivan V. KRICKOV<sup>1</sup>, Artem G. LIM<sup>1</sup>, Rinat M. MANASYPOV<sup>1,2</sup>,
5 Sergey V. LOIKO<sup>1</sup>, Liudmila S. SHIROKOVA<sup>2,3</sup>, Sergey N. KIRPOTIN<sup>1</sup>,

6 Jan KARLSSON<sup>4</sup>, Oleg S. POKROVSKY<sup>1,3</sup>

7

8 <sup>1</sup> BIO-GEO-CLIM Laboratory, Tomsk State University, Tomsk, Russia

9 <sup>2</sup> N. Laverov Federal Center for Integrated Arctic Research, Russian Academy of Sciences,
10 Arkhangelsk, Russia

11 <sup>3</sup> Geosciences and Environment Toulouse, UMR 5563 CNRS, 14 Avenue Edouard Belin 31400
12 Toulouse, France

13 <sup>4</sup> Climate Impacts Research Centre, Department of Ecology and Environmental Science, Umeå
14 University, 901 87 Umeå, Sweden

15

16 *Email: oleg.pokrovsky@get.omp.eu

17 Key words: nutrient, particulate, suspended, landscape, bog, lake, forest, thaw, Siberia

18

19 Submitted to Biogeosciences, after revision, August 2018

20

21

22

23

24

25

26

27

28

29

1

Fig. 1.

G2

Printer-friendly version

Discussion paper

