Thanks for the careful comments. Actually, the authors have made the related revisions during the initial corrections before the manuscript was posted for interactive discussions. “meta-analysis”, indeed, was a careless and hasty delineation in the draft, without citations either. This carelessness has been corrected by substituting it with the right approach “integrative data analysis”, with the explanation and references added. For the second problem – ‘English needs some improvement (there are typos)’, the manuscript has been carefully checked in English use (with typos and grammatical errors revised), assisted by the GrammarCheck tool on the internet.
